Celebrating Cherie Buckner-Webb, 2021 Children’s Champion

Recently retired from the Idaho Legislature, Cherie Buckner-Webb’s lifelong work has resulted in a stronger Idaho for kids and families. She is a founding board member of the Idaho Black History Museum, was awarded Idaho Business Review’s 2019 Woman of the Year, and has been recognized for her tireless work in human rights by the Women’s and Children’s Alliance, Wassmuth Center for Human Rights, and the Andrus Center for Public Policy.

Kids don’t have lobbyists protecting their interests. Instead, they have Idaho Voices for Children. They have you. Proceeds from the event support child advocacy in affordable housing, health, education, safety and well-being.
