What We're Doing

Idaho Voices for Children champions public policies that help kids and families thrive. We serve as a voice for children in the areas of safety and well-being, education, health care and economic security.

Safety & Well-Being

We strengthen the lives of kids in foster care and promote strategies that improve child welfare and prevent child abuse and neglect.

Education

We increase access to quality early learning, affordable child care, infant/toddler programs and strong schools critical to young students.

Health Care

We promote access to affordable health coverage for every Idahoan and quality care for kids to ensure a healthy start in life.

Economic Security

We advance pathways for parents to achieve financial security, access affordable housing and eliminate poverty-related hunger.

How We're Doing It

Idaho Voices for Children relies on research and community partners to identify strategies that best support kids. We mobilize allies from across the state to advocate for smart public policy solutions.

Identify

Our team researches strategies that best support Idaho's kids. We gather sound data and input from community partners across the state to determine which solutions are right for Idaho.

Educate

Our team assesses policy proposals to fully understand impact on Idaho families. We educate elected officials and the public on strategies that best support our children.

Advocate

We advance public policies that help kids and their families thrive. Our team drives change by engaging with youth, families and community partners to better inform policy discussions.

Evaluate

Our team pays close attention long after policy changes are implemented. We monitor programs to assess equity, evaluate outcomes and identify opportunities for improvement.
